Subject: Increasing Access to Period Products on Campus

Hello {{contact: first name}},

My name is {{your first and last name}}, and I am a {{year – e.g., sophomore}} studying {{major}} at {{school name}}{{optional: , where I serve as {{your role – e.g., Student Government Representative}}}}.

I'm reaching out to advocate for expanding access to free period products across campus buildings.

Access to menstrual products is essential for student health, dignity, and academic success. Research shows that 1 in 4 students in the US have struggled to afford period products (State of the Period 2025). Lack of access can lead to missed classes, increased stress, and barriers to fully participating in campus life. Providing free products in restrooms is a simple, high-impact way to support student well-being and equity.

Over 550 higher-education institutions—including both public and private universities—have already implemented campus-wide Aunt Flow period product programs as part of their commitment to accessibility, student support, and inclusion. Expanding access at {{school name}} would ensure we remain competitive and aligned with evolving student expectations.

I'd love to explore implementing a program with Aunt Flow, a woman-owned company that partners with colleges and universities nationwide to provide free-vend dispensers stocked with organic cotton tampons and pads. They make it easy for schools to offer products in a sustainable, scalable, and inclusive way.

A few key benefits for {{school name}}:

- Supports student health, retention, and academic success
- Advances equity and inclusion initiatives
- Enhances the overall campus experience

- Aligns with sustainability goals (organic cotton + sustainable)
- Demonstrates responsiveness to student needs and feedback

I'd appreciate the opportunity to meet and discuss what this could look like on our campus. I'm happy to help gather student feedback, identify pilot locations, or collaborate on next steps.
